Dublin City Walking Tour - Private

As a city, Dublin is 2,000 years old with stories spanning from the daring arrival of early settlers through to the struggle for independence during the last 100 years. A local guide will take you through the heart of history, exploring Dublin on foot. With an emphasis on visiting areas less travelled, expect expert insight on parts of Dublin which are rarely experienced by the average walking tour.

Around the world, Ireland is known for its Guinness its famous dry stout. No trip to Ireland is complete without a visit to the Guinness Storehouse, an interactive multi-storey sensory extravaganza in the heart of the city centre at St James Gate Brewery. With a 250-year history, you'll be taken through the intricate architecture of the sevenstorey building, discover age-old secrets of Guinness, visit the tasting rooms, and learn to pour the perfect pint. Complete your visit with the symbolic 'Head of the Pint', at the Gravity Bar, a top-floor bar with breath-taking panoramic views of Dublin city.
